DAMAGED MERCHANDISE

Shipping damages, while in transit, are the responsibility of the common carrier. The manufacturer cannot assume responsibility for damage to the product, in either the original shipment or during exchange of the part. In accordance with ICC regulations, the buyer must inspect all product immediately upon receipt for correct count, damage, or defect. Visible damage or difference in count should be noted on the delivery receipt by buyer before accepting delivery. Concealed damage must be reported to the carrier 15 days after receipt or shipment and a concealed damage report secured. The liability of the producer for shipping damages ceases with acceptance of the shipment in good order by the carrier at the shipping dock.

Do not destroy or remove cartons and/or crates until the inspection has been completed. Your claim can be filed with the carrier and costs recovered.

YOU ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR FILING OF LOSS AND DAMAGE CLAIMS.
